BACKGROUND

On April 18, 2001, the "Proposed Golf Operations Business Plan" for Torrey Pines and Balboa Park Golf Courses and a PricewaterhouseCoopers market rate analysis of golf fees for Torrey Pines Golf Course were presented to the Natural Resources & Culture (NR&C) Committee of City Council. The Proposed Business Plan recommended numerous operational and fee changes at the golf courses. The consultant's market analysis supported $130 - $150 green fees at Torrey Pines Golf Courses, including golf cart. After public input and discussion, the NR&C Committee voted 4-0 to recommend to full City Council a schedule of green fees for Torrey Pines and Balboa Park Golf Courses effective July 1, 2002 and a Capital Improvement Program which gave top priority to reconstructing greens at Torrey Pines Golf Course. These recommendations were adopted by City Council on June 5, 2001.

Also in April 2001, the NR&C Committee requested that the City Manager return to the Committee with: 1) an independent evaluation of the Proposed Golf Operations Business Plan by the consulting firm, PricewaterhouseCoopers; 2) chart detailing information about all golf courses owned wholly or in part by the City of San Diego; and 3) comparison of green fees to other San Diego courses.

For the PricewaterhouseCoopers evaluation of potential revenues from Torrey Pines Golf Course, the City Manager limited the scope of the analysis to revenue sources that are managed by the City, excluding revenue sources that are under the control of lessees, and for which Golf Operations receives a percentage: cart fees, driving range fees, merchandise sales and food/beverage sales. Additionally, out of the broad range of potential parameters for the consultants to consider in terms of the number of golf rounds and the amount of revenue which could be generated at Torrey Pines Golf Course, the City Manager asked the consultants to evaluate the following three options: 1) maximize revenue; 2) set the green fees such that natural market forces would result in 70% City resident play and 30% non-resident play; and 3) develop a scenario somewhere between options #1 and #2. The consultant's draft report was received on September 1, 2001. It was returned for the consultant to clarify inconsistencies within the report, and received again on October 4, 2001.

As a result of the consultants' insights, as well as staff experience with the new fees effective July 1, 2001 and the expected quality of the reconstructed South Course, the Manager revised many of the April 2001 recommendations for golf operations. As a result, rather than amend the April 2001 Proposed Business Plan, the Manager's recommendation is that City Council adopt the Revised Manager's Recommendations listed in Attachment 1 of this report. This attachment provides a summary comparison of: 1) April 2001 Proposed Business Plan recommendations; 2) October 2001 PricewaterhouseCoopers recommendations; and 3) October 2001 Revised Manager's Recommendations.

The theme of the Revised Manager's Recommendations for the operation of Torrey Pines and Balboa Park Golf Courses is to offer the best golf courses in the world, at an economical cost for both City residents and non-residents, in a fiscally responsible manner. Approval of the Revised Manager's Recommendations, which are guided to a significant extent by the PricewaterhouseCoopers consultant study, and which are largely supported by the citizen Golf Advisory Committee, will bring Torrey Pines and Balboa Park Golf Courses to a new level of service and fiscal integrity.

ALTERNATIVES

1. In addition to adopting the Manager's Recommendation, adopt an ordinance which restricts transfer of tee time reservations for compensation or consideration. For draft ordinance, see Attachment 5. PricewaterhouseCoopers recommends using all reasonable means to ensure receipt by Golf Operations of money paid to play at Torrey Pines Golf Course.
2. Adopt the Manager's Recommendations with revisions.
3. Direct the City Manager to develop a Golf Operations Business Plan based entirely on the October 2001 PricewaterhouseCoopers' recommendations.

Respectfully submitted,

Marcia C. McLatchy
Park and Recreation Director
